Product Description

Product features:

Specialized compartment: The compartment of the dump truck is designed to load bulk materials, such as earth and stone, building materials, etc., and can automatically dump the goods through the hydraulic system to improve loading and unloading efficiency.

Hydraulic lifting system: The dump truck is equipped with a hydraulic lifting system, including a cylinder, a gear pump, a reversing valve, etc., to control the lifting and lowering action of the compartment.

Product advantages:

Reduce labor intensity: Due to the automation of the unloading process, dump trucks reduce the need for manual handling and reduce labor intensity, especially suitable for the transportation of heavy objects and bulk materials.

Adapt to complex terrain: The design of dump trucks usually takes into account stability and durability, so that they can operate stably in relatively rugged terrain, suitable for mines, construction sites and other environments.

Product usage:

Construction projects: Dongfeng dump trucks are often used to transport construction materials such as sand, cement and steel, etc., to improve the loading and unloading efficiency of construction sites and reduce the workload of manual handling.

Urban construction and road construction: Dongfeng dump trucks are responsible for road construction, garbage removal and building material transportation in urban construction projects.
