Product Description

Product features:

Equipped with a quick loading and unloading mechanism, the refuse station can complete refuse transfer within a few minutes after docking with the removal vehicle, which improves the removal efficiency and ensures that the refuse does not accumulate.

High-strength composite materials are used to manufacture some parts to reduce self-weight and improve energy utilisation, as well as being corrosion-resistant to extend service life and reduce long-term maintenance costs.

Product usage:

Commonly used in busy commercial areas of the city, to meet the demand for high-intensity rubbish removal, fast turnover, maintain commercial prosperity, and help commercial development.

In industrial parks, it handles all kinds of industrial rubbish, ensures a clean environment in the park, promotes the safe production of enterprises, and protects the development of enterprises.

Used in urban transport hubs, such as railway stations, bus stations around, to cope with a large number of people generated by the rubbish, to protect the travelling environment of travellers, and to enhance the image of the city.

Product advantages:

Fast loading and unloading saves transit time, improves the cleaning efficiency, ensures that the rubbish does not pile up, and safeguards the city's environmental hygiene.

Composite material reduces weight and energy saving, prolongs service life, reduces long-term maintenance costs, and improves the cost-effectiveness of the equipment.
