Product Description

Product features:

The body is made of high-strength manganese steel, which has strong pressure and impact resistance and can withstand the harsh environment of mines and the impact of ores.

The bottom and side panels of the compartment have been specially reinforced, with built-in reinforcement to effectively prevent deformation and prolong the service life of the compartment.

Key components such as axles, suspension, etc. are all heavy-duty products of well-known brands, with strong load-bearing capacity and high durability.

Product usage:

Suitable for open pit mining, safe transportation of all kinds of ores and slag under the harsh operating environment.

Used in the infrastructure construction of mines, transportation of cement, steel, sand and gravel and other building materials, to ensure the smooth progress of mine construction.

In the daily maintenance of mines, transporting parts and tools needed for equipment maintenance.

Product advantages:

High-strength materials and reinforced design enable the vehicle to withstand high-intensity operations in mines, reducing the number of repairs and lowering operating costs.

High-quality key components ensure the stable operation of the vehicle, extend the overall service life of the equipment and improve the return on investment.

Reliable durability guarantees the continuity of mining operations and avoids production stoppages due to vehicle failures.
